DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
This is an early twentieth century structure which apparently replaced a building similar to that at 509 Park Avenue. It is two stories high and three bays wide, and built of common bond-laid masonry. The basement is of stone and is pierced by two oblong rectangular windows with three lights. Four stone stairs lead to a door with a fanlight transom. Above this is a blank entablature supported by the door frame, on which are carved, flat pilasters. A straight bond belt course appears above the entablature cornice. To the right of the door are two double hung, six-over-nine windows with simple stone sills and splayed brick lintels set with keystones. The same configuration is seen in the second story windows, only here the windows are six-over-six. A thin stone strip at the roof line serves as a cornice for the building.
